PREFACE

For fifteen years we have been engaged in compiling The Genealogical History of the New York branch of Klings. The utmost care has been exercised to secure historic accuracy, but absolute accuracy of the history of one's ancestors is not always obtainable after a century and a half has passed by. Much time spent in extended inquiry, in tracing the descendants of the eight children of John Ludwig Kling has failed to locate several families of the third generation, supposedly in Ohio. Therefore their names do not appear in the chapter to which they belong.

Errors will undoubtedly be found in this work. The pointing out of them by the descendants will be deemed a kindness.

Many thanks are due to all that have aided in our work, especially to William N. Kling, Amsterdam, N. Y.; Willard J. Kling, Santa Monica, Calif.; Myron H. Kling, Sioux City, Ia.; Levi Kling, Grand Island City, Nebr.; I. M. Kling, Breakabeen, N. Y.; Mrs. Clara Folsom, Fayetteville, N. Y., and Mrs. Hattie Kling Snively, Syracuse, N. Y.

CHAPTER I.

The Coming of the Palatines.

In presenting this Historical Genealogy of John Ludwig Kling and his descendants the compiler has not been influenced by an idea of financial gain, but by a sense of the worthiness of the history being published.

To the inquiry "what is the benefit of it?" we reply that aside from legal purposes, a family genealogy has a valuable moral mission in awakening a realization that our personality will live in its influence thru succeeding generations, and in stimulating a desire to improve upon the past and to be worthy of the future.

In tracing the Kling ancestry there has been of necessity much gleaning from historical documents, Revolutionary Archives, recorded deeds and other official documents, church and family records, and last but not least, from tomb stones, in order to gain trustworthy information and to satisfy ourselves who were our ancestors, what induced them to cross the ocean to find a home in a strange land, among savage people, whence they came and where they settled.

It has required no small effort to trace the families of their children to the sixth generation, in a few instances to the 7th and 8th generation often so mixed by inter-marriage as to render our task well-nigh hopeless. History is a record of events and conditions which are past. Its value depends upon correctness and completeness. It is a matter of deep regret that our ancestors did not give more attention to record. They were a sturdy people, honest, laborious and frugal. They were engaged, as were hundreds of others in the noble work of carving out a home from the unwilling forest and securing for themselves and posterity civil and religious liberty. In neither thought, purpose or effort were they idle, and when we consider their conditions and surroundings, and take into account the results of their efforts we are not prepared to censure. To make clear who were our ancestors and what induced them to cross the ocean to find a home in a strange land, it is necessary to go back fifty years before they came. They were German Palatine tenants, so called from the fact that the lands they occupied were owned and governed by officers under the crown designated Palatines and the provinces thus ruled were called Palatinates. The tenants, mostly Protestants, were persecuted and taxed almost beyond endurance by their Palatine officials.

History informs us that when Louis XIV of France conquered the Palatinate or Lower Germany he found himself unable to maintain his conquest and to prevent the enemy's army reoccupying the country he ordered its devastation by "sword and fire."

The homeless Palatines to the number of a hundred thousand fled as did the Huguenots, in terror to Protestant countries. Some to northern Germany and Sweden, others to Holland, but the larger part made their way to London. Queen Anne endeavored to provide for the helpless, homeless Palatines but died before her intended assistance was carried out.

At this time England was endeavoring to colonize her American possessions. Taking advantage of the "necessitous condition" of the Palatines, the English government thru its agents offered them lands and money to immigrate to the colony of New York. Hundreds of them accepted the offer. Arriving at New York they were housed on Nuttin Island, now Governors Island, for a year. In the meantime scores of them died from the effects of poor water and insanitary conditions. Finally Governor Hunter placed them in camps, in the pine forests on both banks of the Hudson River in the vicinity of Livingston Manor to manufacture "Pitch and Tar." After two years of hard labor and patient waiting, they found they had been deceived. Neither money nor land promised them in London was given them for their labor and the food furnished them was of poor quality. On reminding Governor Hunter of this promise they were told "to shift for themselves but not to leave the camp" as "they had not paid the expense of bringing them over." Thereupon fifty families left the camp in January, 1713, and made their way thru the snow to the Indians in Schoharie Valley who gave them land upon which to erect huts to protect themselves from the cold and storms of winter and showed them where to gather edible roots, otherwise all would inevitably have perished from cold and hunger.

Words are inadequate to describe the sufferings these people endured that first winter in Schoharie Valley. Others followed from the camps and New York City, so that by 1730 they had established seven "Dorfs," farm villages. They were the PIONEER SETTLERS of Schoharie County.

Between 1710 and 1724 the third and last large immigration of German Palatines was made to New York colony and from it were some of the settlers of Stone Arabia, German Flats, Palatine, and Mohawk Valley, west of Schenectady. Being an industrious people they soon cleared small portions of the forest covered land and erected comfortable log houses. They raised Indian corn which was their chief article of food for some years. No flouring mill being nearer the settlements than the Dutch settlement of Schenectady and no way of carrying the corn except upon their backs the Indian method of pounding the corn was adopted, the kernels were cracked and boiled.

For breakfast they had corn pudding which they ate without milk, cream, sugar or syrup as there were no cows in the settlements for a number of years and no sugar obtainable nearer than Albany. At dinner they had potatoes, at supper they had both pudding and potatoes.

Their working hours were from sunrise to sunset. They had no artificial light except what came from the huge fire place and often that light was unsafe, because it was a guide to the prowling savages. The population of the different settlements was increased from time to time by the arrival of relatives, old friends and former neighbors from the fatherland who came over in small companies of fifty or seventy-five persons.

In 1755 such a company of German Palatines landed at Philadelphia. For some unknown reason the German Palatines were not allowed for several years to land at New York and were obliged to sail to Philadelphia from which many made the journey on foot to the settlements in the colony of New York.

In this company were three German Palatine families, the heads of which were brothers, by the name of Kling. They came from Hanover, having fled to that province from Wurtemberg several years previously on account of religious persecution.

Nearly two years later two of the brothers, George and Henreck (Henry) with other families of this company made the journey on foot from eastern Pennsylvania to the Palatine settlement of Stone Arabia, New York colony, where two companies of Palatines had settled as early as 1722 on a tract of land extending from the mouth of the Schoharie Creek nearly to the present site of Utica, a distance of about 50 miles.

That settlement was the Mecca to which all footsteps of later arriving Palatines led.

It is thought a brief history of the Frantz now France and Ottman families and their relationship to the Kling family will be appreciated by those having little or no information of the early history of their ancestors.

The relationship between the three families was the result of marriage and inter-marriage.

Sebastian France, a German Palatine, was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, 1732. His wife, Anna Fritz (he never had a second wife) was born 1733 in the same place. They were married 1752 and in the same year started for America, a journey of many months in those days of sailing vessels.

The reason for leaving the fatherland was on account of religious intolerance. Their companions on the journey were Eunice Fritz, sister of Anna (Fritz) France, Christopher and Michael Marckley and their families, all sturdy followers of Martin Luther.

The following is an exact copy of the family record written by himself in German in the old German Family Bible and translated by F. G. Geisler:

THE FAMILY RECORD

"The blood of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, makes me clean from all my sins."

Sebastian France died in the year 1805. Anna Fritz, his wife survived him eleven years and died 1816. Both were interred upon the homestead. November 20, 1891, G. G. France, grandson, had them and their massacred son, John, disinterred and removed to his family plot in the Zion Rural Cemetery at Seward Center, Schoharie County, N. Y.

Gilbert G. France was the son of Henry France, who married and resided near his birthplace during his entire life.

Christian Ottman, a German Palatine, came to New Durlach, now town of Sharon, Schoharie County, N. Y., in 1761, and located upon a timber covered farm. He had a numerous family, six or seven sons, the number of daughters not recorded.

Several years after his arrival in New Durlach during an Indian incursion three of his sons were taken prisoners and carried to the British Military Post at Niagara where they were held for more than a year before they returned to their home.

William Ottman, one of the three brothers, afterwards married Catherine France, a daughter of Sebastian France and thus became brother-in-law of John Ludwig Kling, whose wife was Anna France, eldest daughter of Sebastian France. William Ottman's daughter, Catherine, was married to John Kling, a grandson of John Ludwig and Anna (France) Kling.

CHAPTER II

Arrival in Stone Arabia 1757 of George and Henreck Kling

When the Kling families arrived in Stone Arabia, nearly two years after landing in Philadelphia, they soon learned that all trouble and anxiety were not left in Germany.

Trouble had been brewing for a number of years between the Palatine settlers and English officials over the ownership of land. Many of the former had purchased land from the Indians. The English officials claimed the Palatines' titles were illegal, because England had gained New York by conquest and that government alone had authority to sell the land. The trouble was further increased by threatened Indian attacks, so that from 1759 to 1771 a large number of the Palatines left the settlements in the Schoharie Valley and Mohawk Valley and went to Pennsylvania where land was easily obtained and Indian attacks infrequent.

George Kling and his family remained thirteen years in New York colony. He and his wife and a daughter were members of the Palatine Lutheran Church that was erected in 1770. It is yet in use and is the oldest church edifice in Montgomery County.

1771 George Kling and family with other Palatines returned to Pennsylvania.

The return of George Kling to Pennsylvania gave two of the brothers to that colony and one, Henreck Kling, to New York colony.

When the three lower counties of Pennsylvania became the colony of Delaware and later the state, one of the two brothers found himself in that territory. As we have not had access to early documents of either state we can not say definitely whether it was George or John Kling.

But it is understood upon good authority that Amos Kling, father of Mrs. Harding was a descendant of the Delaware branch.

When a young man, Amos Kling went to Connecticut. On April 4, 1859, he married Louisa M. Bouton, in New Canaan, Conn. Soon after he removed to Marion County, Ohio, where he, like the majority of the Kling descendants engaged in farming. Here his only daughter, Florence Kling Harding, was born, also his two sons. Later he became a retired farmer and made his home in the city as scores of the other Klings have done.

John Ludwig Kling, son of Henreck Kling, was a nephew of George Kling and cousin to his children, also related in same way to John Kling, brother of George and Henreck. The former remained in Pennsylvania.

Nearly seven generations have passed away since the return of George Kling and family to Pennsylvania, therefore, it is impossible for us to state the Christian name of the ancestor of Amos Kling. Of one fact, we are certain that he was a descendant of one of the two brothers, John Kling or George Kling, one of which became a resident of the State of Delaware.

In the city of Marion, Ohio, Florence Kling was united in marriage with Warren G. Harding, owner and publisher of the "Marion Star."

When their home was fully established she joined her husband in the conduct of his newspaper publishing where her ability and watchful interest were soon apparent.

To the day of his "Home Going" she never wavered in her devotion to her husband, as wife, companion, and assistant.

The following tribute by an unknown author is inserted in our history in appreciation of him who was all of life to Florence Kling Harding.

WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING.

The life, death and burial of a great president have now become material for the historian. Perhaps at no time since the death of the immortal Lincoln has a public man been so universally mourned as President Warren Gamaliel Harding. On Thursday, August 2, from far-off San Francisco came the sorrowful tidings that plunged a mighty nation into grief. You can observe it everywhere. The bravery and patience manifested by our late beloved president in his illness can be likened to that Greek gladiator of old who "conquered agony but yielded to death." How peaceful and calm was his exit! A gifted poet has said that the end of the good man is peace: "Night dews fall not more gently to the ground, nor weary, worn-out winds expire so soft."

Today the sun is shrouded—veiled. And fair America weeps. It is claimed that there is but one pardonable sorrow, and it is that for the departed. But as many as are the shadows that flit across the horizon of our earthly life, where does not shine a star, where does not speak a still small voice to the mourner's heart, to light the gloom or minister comfort? The loss to our country and to Mrs. Harding is indeed great; but there is a balm for every wound, a haven of rest where the sorrowing heart may find relief. We shed tears today, when we think of our dead president and we think, too, that a man of such sterling worth has surely gone to that place "Where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest."

To attempt to write of the grandeur, the purity, the charitableness and true value of Warren G. Harding is beyond our humble scope. We feel that our power of expression is inadequate—too commonplace to do him justice. We believe that he was a great man. Our judgment is based on the fact that a truly great man can be known only when he has assumed the principal character in some great deed or event. Possibly the greatest writers, orators and philosophers have lived and died in perfect silence—unknown.

Warren G. Harding assumed the leading part in the affairs of a mighty nation at its most critical moment—at the conclusion of the greatest war in all recorded history. His moderate and kindly manner fitted him to take command at that time. His was the type that is strong, yet gentle, that possesses calmness, kindness of heart, genuine old-fashioned virtue, faith, vision. He was a healer of human distress occasioned by a great world war. What he did was worth living for, worth dying for.

Warren G. Harding was not counterfeit. He was not blurred. He was the real gem. Honesty, courage and generosity were his three virtues. His perfect candor was his sword and shield. As a progressive journalist he had early learned to understand the nature of man and to get at the truth, at the very heart of things. His written words, clear and direct as light and candid as a looking-glass, gave one a perfect picture of his thoughts. It is said of him that he never was afraid to ask—never too dignified to admit that he did not know. Finally, he was natural in his life and thought—a mild, gentle, peaceful and wise ruler.

There is a saying to the effect that if you want to know a man's true character give him power. It is easy for the weak to be gentle. Most people can bear adversity. But if you wish to know what a man really is, give him a big, responsible job. This is the supreme test. It is the glory of Warren G. Harding that having almost absolute power, he never abused that power except on the side of the well-being of the citizens whom he had the honor of representing. Through such things as titles, clothes, manners and race he saw the real—that which is. He was just "plain folks." Today he sleeps:

"A little pause in life while daylight lingers
Between the sunset and the pale moonrise;
When daily troubles slip from weary fingers
And calm grey shadows veil the aching eyes."

Henreck (Henry) Kling was a widower with two children when he joined the Stone Arabia Palatine settlement, a daughter, Elizabeth, seven years old, and son, John Ludwig, five years old.

An infant son was given to the wife's parents at her death and left in Germany.

October 15, 1767, he married a second wife, Catherine Sternburg, of Stone Arabia. August 16, 1768, a son, Johann George, was born. On August 21 the infant was baptized (christened) in the High German Reformed Church of Stone Arabia. The witnesses were John Ludwig, half brother, and Margaretta Silback.

September 7, 1768, Elizabeth Kling, sister of John Ludwig, was married to Johannes Misselles who, when the Revolutionary war began, sided with England and with his wife and children fled to Canada and never returned. At the close of the war his farm was confiscated and sold by the government.

During one of the Tory and Indian raids Johann George, son of Henreck and Catherine Kling, disappeared suddenly and no trace of him was ever found. It was thought he was captured and carried off by the Indians who frequently adopted captive white children.

In 1765 or '66, Henreck Kling purchased a tract of land containing 264 acres, known as lot No. 43 in the old Patent of Durlach, granted to Johannes Lawyer and others, the whole tract being in the town of New Durlach, so named by the early German settlers, many of them having come from Durlach, Germany. The Germans pronounced it "Turlach." The name is variously spelled. After clearing some of his forest covered land and erecting a log house he removed from Stone Arabia to New Durlach.

Soon after coming to New Durlach, Henreck Kling purchased a second tract of land containing 106 1-2 acres, known as lot No. 4 of the subdivision of lot No. 10, in Young's Patent. This tract has been owned by his descendants for a century and a half.

November 15, 1772, John Ludwig Kling, son of Henreck Kling, married Anna, the oldest of twelve children of Sebastian (Frantz) now France and wife, Anna Fritz. Their daughter was born on the ocean October 20, 1753, while on their voyage to America. Her sister, Catherine France, was married to William, son of Christian Ottman, and her sister, Elizabeth France, was the wife of Paul Shank, a soldier of Burgoyne's Army. Hence the relationship between the Frances, Klings, Ottmans and Shanks, since increased by inter-marriage.

When Ludwig Kling and wife began life's journey together in the home of his father, Henreck Kling, everything had to be done by manual labor. One hundred fifty years ago the simplest machinery was unknown to the settlers. All cooking was done over a fire-place that usually occupied an entire side of the one-room log house. Wool and flax raised upon the farm furnished the family clothing after weeks and often months of toil in preparing the material. When we consider the incessant toil and privation of our ancestors we must give them credit for invincible courage.

When the call came to old Tryon County for all the men from eighteen to sixty years of age to perform military duty, John Ludwig Kling responded, serving as Sergeant under Colonel Clyde, First Regiment, Tryon County Militia, Captain Mathias Brown.

John Ludwig Kling being on scout duty from 1778 to 1781, was watching and reporting the movements of the disloyal in Tryon County, of which there were not a few. In the same regiment were Lieutenant John Seeber, Adjutant Jacob Seeber, Captain Jacob Diefendorf, Ensign John L. Bellinger and others of his neighborhood.

The German Palatines were characterized as having resolute will and great physical strength and they exercised both in defense of their adopted country.

Their descendants are awakening to the fact that no other people save the Huguenots came here as did their Palatine ancestors, not as impoverished immigrants but as a people who dared ALL FOR CONSCIENCE SAKE who when here gave to our country's need more men proportionately to their number than any other nationality.

The settlers of New Durlach, Schoharie Valley, Stone Arabia and the Mohawk Valley lived in soul stirring times during the Revolutionary War. Indians and Tories, equally bloodthirsty, murdered and scalped for British gold and applied the torch without a moment's warning.

The following incident was related to the sister of the compiler of this history in the summer of 1909 by an aged granddaughter of Ludwig Kling, Mrs. Peter W. Ottman, who said her grandmother Kling told it to her. "During the raid of Tories and Indians, October 18, 1780, upon the France and Marckley families in New Durlach, part of which is now the town of Seward, N. Y., the John Ludwig Kling family, living about two miles northeast of them, hearing of the approach of the savages, fled for safety to the forest covered hill a short distance from the home. The mother, Anna (France) Kling with her child in her arms being unable to keep up with the other members of her family crept under a stack of hay where she spent the night in fear, praying for the safety of her loved ones.

“To prevent the cries of her child betraying her hiding place to the merciless foe she stopped its mouth with her kerchief. The next day the sad news came that her 14-year-old brother, John France, had been killed and scalped. Also Catherine Marckley, affianced wife of her brother, Christopher France, who was in the army. The distress and personal anguish of the defenceless women and children of that period cannot be described.”

JOHN LUDWIG KLING.

John Ludwig Kling was the oldest son and only child of Henreck Kling in New York colony and is regarded as the progenitor of all the Klings found in Schoharie and other counties of New York State and also of a small army of them scattered from Central Ohio thruout most of the western states to the Pacific coast, but does not include a score or more residents of the City of New York that have arrived in the United States in recent years.

On the death of his father, Henreck Kling, John Ludwig inherited his entire estate and continued his residence at the old farm home. Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France, were the parents of eight children; names and dates of birth and names of those they married follow:

Mary Kling, born January 3, 1773; married David Bellinger.

Nicholas Kling, born March 24, 1774; married Eve Ecker.

Laney Kling, born February 4, 1777; married William Seeber.

John George Kling, born January 8, 1780; married Laney Dailey.

Katy Kling, born October 2, 1784; married J. Van Alstyne.

Jacob Kling, born December 27, 1785; married Dorothy Gasper.

Henry Kling, born January 11, 1788; married Elizabeth Summers.

Nancy Kling, born March 3, 1790; married Henry Lehman.

All of their children were born at the old home, in what is now known as the town of Sharon, Schoharie County, State of New York, with which the history of one branch of the Klings is so intimately associated.

For the better understanding of the location and names of places mentioned in this work a brief geographical history is here given.

From 1691 to 1772, a period of eight-one years, there were but nine counties in the entire colony of New York, and Albany County embraced all the territory north of Dutchess and Ulster Counties and extended indefinitely westward.

In 1772, thru the efforts of Sir William Johnson, a new county was formed that included all of New York colony west of a line extending due north of the Delaware River and along the eastern limits of the present counties of Montgomery, Fulton and Hamilton to the Canadian line. The new county was named Tryon in honor of the Colonial Governor Tryon. Thus more than half of the present Schoharie County was in old Tryon County. Within its limits was the Town of New Durlach.

In 1784 the name of Tryon County was changed to Montgomery County, in honor of General Richard Montgomery, because of the unpopularity of Governor Tryon. The present towns of Sharon, Seward, part of the town of Carlisle made up part of the town of New Durlach.

Schoharie County was not formed until April 6, 1795, and the eastern part of New Durlach was annexed to it under the name of Sharon, from a town in Connecticut from which a number of settlers came at the close of the Revolutionary War.

The town of Sharon was called New Durlach up to 1797. The following hamlets were in the New Durlach territory, Sharon Hill, now Sharon P. O., Sharon Center, Sharon Springs, Engles Mills, Leesville and Beekman's Corners.

It may not be known by present day Klings that the Battle of Sharon occurred on July 10, 1781, near Sharon Center in the town of New Durlach between the forces of Colonel Willett of less than 300 regulars and militia, and Dockstader, a Mohawk Tory at the head of 400 Tories and Indians. It was a repetition of Oriskany but Colonel Willett won for the Patriots.

The following towns of Schoharie were embraced in Tryon County and later in Montgomery County: Summit, Jefferson, Richmondville, Seward, Sharon, and part of Carlisle.

The town of Carlisle was formed 1807. The town of Seward 1840.

John Ludwig Kling and Anna France were young when they married, but with undaunted courage they performed life's duties amidst toil and discouragement, danger and sacrifice incident to those early days and failed not to implant in the minds of their children the great truths of Christianity.

As we contemplate the history of the family we are led to believe their teachings have borne fruit, as witnessed by the number of teachers and ministers found among their descendants.

John Ludwig Kling never applied for a pension, tho entitled to it. He disposed of his real estate by deed after the death of his wife, in 1824, to three of his sons. Jacob was not a farmer. He sold the land as he purchased it in lots, hence the difference in the number of acres.

"July 30, 1824, personally appeared before me, William Beekman, First Judge of the County of Schoharie, John Ludwig Kling, a person to me personally well known to be the grantor to the within deed and who acknowledged the within deed as his own voluntary act and deed for the purpose therein contained and I having examined the same, let it be recorded.

WILLIAM BEEKMAN.

Recorded and examined June 7, 1825, at 12 o'clock noon.

JOHN D. LAWYER, Clerk."

Each of the following deeds were executed and recorded on the dates above mentioned and certified by Judge Beekman:

(1) To Nicholas, his son, he sold 106 1-2 acres for $1,500.

(2) To John George, his son, he sold 139 1-2 acres for $1,500.

(3) To Henry, his son, he sold 124 1-2 acres for $1,500.

All three deeds on record in the County Clerk's office contain the following statement:

"In consideration of the sum of $1,500, money of account of the United States, to him in hand paid, at or before the ensealing and delivery of these presents by the said party of the second part, etc."

From the fact of the deeds being recorded the same day and hour it is quite possible they were left unrecorded until after the grantor's death.

Less than a quarter of a mile east of the Eldredge residence, that occupies the site of the old home of Ludwig Kling, in a field bordering a small brook, is the family and neighborhood burial ground of one hundred and fifty years ago.

Here in field stone marked and sunken graves repose the ashes of Henreck Kling and wife, Catherine Sternburg, and of John Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France.

June, 1923, through the generosity of William N. Kling, great grandson of John George Kling and great great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, a monument was erected in Slate Hill Cemetery in memory of John George Kling, and wife, who are buried in the Kling lot, and also in memory of John Ludwig Kling and Anna France, his wife. Grandchildren of John George Kling paid the back taxes and put the lot under perpetual care, thus securing the deed.

CHAPTER III.

(1) Mary Kling Bellinger's Descendants.

MARY KLING, oldest child of John Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France, was born in County Tryon, Province of New York, January 8, 1773, where the English flag waved, "not over the free, but over the home of the brave Palatine settlers."

She was united in marriage with David Bellinger of the same county. They were the parents of ten children. Names of them and names of those they married follow:

Peter Bellinger married Eva Frederick.

David D. Bellinger married Sophia Zea.

Hannah Bellinger married Peter W. Ottman.

Mary Bellinger married John C. Smith.

Margaret Bellinger married Robert Wyman.

Jane Bellinger did not marry.

Eliza Bellinger married Peter Zea.

Catherine Bellinger did not marry.

Sophie Bellinger married Soloman Ingleman, first wife.

Laney Bellinger married Soloman Ingleman, second wife.

A record of the descendants of but one of Mary (Kling) Bellinger's children has been obtained for this history, that of "Hannah," wife of Peter W. Ottman, son of William Ottman and his wife, Catherine France. Peter was an own cousin of Hannah's mother, as Mrs. John Ludwig Kling and Mrs. William Ottman were sisters, daughters of Sebastian France.

Peter W. Ottman and Hannah Bellinger were the parents of fifteen children. All, but one who died in infancy, lived to adult age, married and established homes. The following is a list of the names of their children, and names of those they married:

William Ottman died in infancy.

Laney M. Ottman married Martin W. Smith.

Catherine Ottman married Chauncey Osterhout.

Christina Ottman married Jeremiah Bellinger.

Jeremiah Ottman married Mary Jane Lowe.

Mary Ottman married William Bellinger.

Nancy Ottman married first, Koert Van Schaick, second, Sherman Robinson.

Ann Eliza Ottman married Reuben L. Empie.

John Ottman married Eliza Bellinger.

Martin Luther Ottman married Mary C. Lehman.

Hannah Ottman married John Heimbürg.

David Ottman married Miss Van Volkenburg.

Martha Ottman married Levi Kilts.

Ellen Ottman married John Sigsby.

Ephraim Ottman married Miss Sommers.

All of Hannah (Bellinger) Ottman's children were great grand children of John Ludwig Kling, and all the children of Mary (Kling) Bellinger were grand children of John Ludwig Kling.

David Ottman, Mrs. Martha O. Kilts of Cobleskill and Mrs. Nancy (Ottman) Robinson, of Rochester, are the only children living of Peter W. and Hannah (Bellinger) Ottman.

Laney M. Ottman was married to Martin W. Smith of Duanesburg, N. Y., where they made their future home. Both have passed away. No children survive them.

Catherine Ottman was born in the town of Sharon, 1831, and died in town of Cobleskill, 1886.

She was the wife of Chauncey Osterhout. They had one child, a daughter, Amelia.

Mrs. Osterhout survived her husband a number of years, making her home, the remainder of her life with her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Kling.

Christina Ottman, was united in marriage with Jeremiah Bellinger of the town of Seward, where their entire married life was spent. She was survived by her husband eight years. They were the parents of four sons and six daughters. Names follow :

Peter Bellinger
William Bellinger
Eugene Bellinger
Marvin Bellinger
Mrs. Harvey D. Karker
Mrs. Seth Van Volkenburg
Mrs. Henry Van Volkenburg
Mrs. Wilber Young
Mrs. Harvey Karker
Mrs. Menzo Livingston

Mrs. Livingston, of Seward, was the first one of Mr. and Mrs. Bellinger's children to pass away. In the summer of 1922, she suffered a stroke of apoplexy and lived only a few hours. Her husband, a son, Peter, a daughter, Mrs. Daniel Kilts, nine grandchildren, five sisters and four brothers are the nearest survivors.

Before becoming president of the Common Council Mr. Kling was a member of that body as alderman from the Sixth Ward. Mr. Kling's place of business is on Beaver street, and first as alderman and then as president of the Council, he has given the city the benefit of his splendid business training. At the present time he is postmaster of the City of Albany. He is progressive, public-spirited and conscientious, and has a host of friends.

Many of the important improvements in Albany's business section has the encouragement and support of Mr. Kling. As member of the Common Council he fathered many of the street improvement ordinances, and as member of the committee on land, water and railroads, he had much to do with the city's splendid river front improvements. He was also instrumental in bringing about the permanent improvement to South Pearl street and State street.

Mr. Kling spent his boyhood days on a farm at Sharon Springs, Schoharie County, where he was born December 23, 1877. He received his preliminary schooling in the schools of his native town, after which he took a course at the Albany Business College. He then married and made Albany his permanent home. In the early 40's, a peculiar disease (?) called "Western Fever" (?) prevailed, largely in Old Sharon, Schoharie County, N. Y., and in some Mohawk Valley towns, for which there was no apparent remedy except to remove to the west and scores of the afflicted ones went "west" as soon as their financial affairs were arranged.

Strange as it appears, some of the Klings, a hardy, stick-to-home race were stricken with it. Jacob Kling and wife and most of his children went to Wisconsin, also George Kling, son of John George Kling, with his family made that state their home. Two of the sons of Nicholas Kling, John Kling and David Kling, with their families and two of his sons-in-law, Martin Van Alstyne and Elisha Daniels with their families were of the number that went "west."

northern part of Illinois. A few years later he removed to Plymouth, Ohio, where his brother, David, resided and there made his future home.

DAVID KLING, fifth son of Nicholas Kling, had a number of children but we have not succeeded in tracing the New York Klings that settled in Plymouth County, Ohio, seventy-five years ago. In Marion County, south of Plymouth County, there are descendants of the Delaware family of Klings, west of those counties are descendants of the Pennsylvania family of Klings. Hence there is evidence that there are descendants of the three Palatine families that came to America in 1755 living at the present time in Ohio.

CHAPTER V.

(3) Laney Kling Seeber's Descendants.

Laney Kling Seeber was born September 4, 1777, in the town of New Durlach, Tryon County.

She was the third child and second daughter of John Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France.

Laney was not two months old when Burgoyne's Army surrendered to the American Army under General Gates at Saratoga. Nicholas, her brother was not four years old, and Mary, her sister was not five years old and Anna (France) Kling, their mother, had at that time three children under five years of age.

Laney Kling was married 1795 to William Seeber of Montgomery County as the name of Tryon County no longer existed. The new county of Schoharie was formed the year of their marriage. They began housekeeping in the town of Sharon, as the old town of Durlach no longer existed. William Seeber was a taxpayer in the town of Sharon where he was the owner of a farm in 1827.

Laney Kling and husband, William Seeber, had two sons, James Seeber and Adam Seeber. Much search has yielded scant information relating to the family of James Seeber and that of his brother, Adam Seeber.

JAMES SEEBER, son of Laney (Kling) and husband, William Seeber, was married to Miss Clara Lowell. They resided at Lowell's Corners, near Seward Valley, Schoharie County. ("Seward Valley" is now known as Dorloo.) They were the parents of five children: Melissa, Emeline, Mahala, William and Sylvester.

ADAM SEEBER, brother of James Seeber, married and lived in that part of the town of Sharon, which is now town of Seward.

It is to be regretted that more information of the descendants of Laney Kling Seeber was not secured.

CHAPTER VI.

(4) John George Kling's Descendants.

JOHN GEORGE KLING, fourth child and second son of J. Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France, was born in old Tryon County, Province of New York, January 8, 1780. Died in town of Sharon, Schoharie County, N. Y., September 6, 1861. Married Laney Dailey of Connecticut, March 16, 1802. She was born September 18, 1782, of English ancestry and died in town of Sharon, Schoharie County, New York, November 21, 1867.

John George Kling was a man of decided will and much intellectual ability. The limited educational advantages afforded him in youth were offset by much reading, and he was well informed upon the questions of the day, concerning state and national affairs. Being the son of a soldier and the grandson of another soldier, Sebastian France, he was interested in the affairs of his country.

The German language was used in the schools of his boyhood. He taught himself to read and write English. He continued, however, to read his German Bible until a short time previous to his death when he gave it to his nephew, Rev. Marcus Kling, who could read and speak German.

In 1827, John George Kling was appointed tax collector of the town of Sharon, which included all of the present town of Seward and which remained a part of Sharon until February 1, 1840.

At the expiration of 97 years his well preserved Collector's book and "bond" is of interest because of the many taxpayers' names recorded therein whose descendants are living at the present time in the towns of Sharon and Seward.

It will be surprising to the younger generation of his descendants to learn that their ancestor, while engaged in cultivating a large farm, also wove the cloth of yarn spun from wool by members of his household for the clothing of himself and five sons. He also wove blankets, woolen cloth for dresses, and linen cloth from flax grown upon his farm.

Cloth for the men's Clothing when it came from the loom was taken to a "fulling-mill" where it was dyed, fulled and pressed ready for the tailor. It was a never-to-be-forgotten event in the life of the young farmer of a century ago when he escorted his lady love home from "meetin'" clad in a new home spun suit decorated with brass buttons.

All of John George Kling's children were born and grew to adult age upon the homestead farm that he purchased from his father, John Ludwig Kling in 1824, who inherited it from Henreck Kling, his father. See Chapter II.

John George was the only one of the eight children of John Ludwig to live his entire life on the old farm, die there and with his wife be buried in Slate Hill Cemetery. Interment had been made in the old family and neighborhood burial plot on the farm. Afterwards Rev. Robert Stotts and wife, Mary Kling, purchased a lot in the cemetery and requested Francis Kling, youngest son of John George, to superintend the removal of the bodies to Slate Hill Cemetery, which he did.

John George and wife, Laney Dailey, were the parents of eight children, five sons and three daughters. Names, dates of birth and names of those they married follow:

Gilbert Ottman, brother of Mrs. Lucinda (Ottman) Safford and son of John Ottman and wife, Nancy Kling, resided nearly all his life in the town of Carlisle, N. Y. He was a farmer. He married and had several children but none of them could be located. Gilbert Ottman is deceased.

Jane Kling, only daughter of John Kling and Catherine (Ottman) his wife, was married to John Henry Bellinger, a farmer living near what was formerly called "Sharon Hill." The name "Hill" was dropped by the Post Office Department, but the real "Hill" is yet very much in evidence.

John William Kling, brother of Jane Kling Bellinger, was born in Sharon, N. Y., 1837. He married Helen Baker in 1860. Peter Augustus Kling was the youngest child of John and Catherine (Ottman) Kling. He was born August 23, 1840, in Sharon, Schoharie County, N. Y. He was five years old when his father died.

Some years after his mother married a second time but the marriage not proving satisfactory the husband and wife agreed to separate, which they did. Peter A. married Phillips Ann Banker and located a few years after in Amsterdam, N. Y., where he continued in business for forty years. They had three children. Two sons and one daughter. Two survived their parents. John Kling and Nancy (Kling) Brown. The devoted wife and mother died several years previous to the death of her husband.

After the death of his wife Peter A. Kling made his home with his daughter when in Amsterdam, but spent part of his time in Poughkeepsie with his son, John Kling.

Peter and Elizabeth Kling were the parents of 4 children; Stephen S., Amenzo C., Ella and Harmon.

Peter Kling was greatly interested in the education of his children, for this he labored and planned. All of his children were teachers.

In his boyhood he sustained a serious injury to one of his knees which caused him much suffering, increasing in intensity to middle life when amputation became necessary. He recovered and though handicapped by the use of a crutch he was free of that suffering the remainder of his days.

Peter and Elizabeth Kling were devoted members of the Lutheran Church. Husband, wife, and Harmon, their youngest son, are buried in beautiful "Slate Hill Cemetery," Sharon.

Stephen S. Kling, oldest of Peter Kling's children, was born at the old Kling homestead in Sharon, N. Y., April 9, 1837. Died in Los Angeles, Calif., June 28, 1915. FRANCIS KLING, sixth and youngest son of John George Kling and wife, Laney Dailey, was born (Christmas) December 25, 1818, at the home of his grandparents, John Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France.

Francis Kling was five years old when his grandmother Kling died and nearly seven years old when his grandfather, John Ludwig Kling, died.

1837, George Kling, brother of Francis Kling, removed with his family to a farm two and a half miles south of the village of Cobleskill, in the town of Cobleskill, that he and Francis had purchased. Three years later George Kling sold his share in the farm to Peter Kling, his brother, and returned with his family to the old home in Sharon. Three or four years after George Kling removed with a number of other Sharon families to the new state of Wisconsin.

Peter Kling and Francis, his brother, cultivated the farm on shares three years when they sold the farm and Peter Kling and family returned to the old home in Sharon.

Francis Kling remained and purchased another farm. He married Mary Elizabeth Foland, daughter of Henry Foland, who was born in Columbia County, a son of Philip Foland, a Revolutionary soldier.

Mary Elizabeth (Foland) Kling was born in the town of Cobleskill, February 19, 1823. Died at Vintonton, her home, September 28, 1888.

In the year 1852, Francis Kling sold his farm and purchased a larger one, five miles south of Cobleskill Village in the town of Richmondville, known as the Brewster-Ward farm, where he spent the remainder of his days.

He was interested in every department of agriculture, especially dairying. He had few hours of leisure as his working hours were from 5 a. m. to 7 p. m. He did not complain of the hard work on the farm. He was a great reader, tho his time for reading was limited to the evening hours, when bodily weariness often overcame his mental faculties and the newspaper or book he was reading would drop from his hand.

On attaining his majority he voted with the "Whig" party until 1860, when he entered the Republican party of which he remained a strong supporter to the close of his life.

Francis Kling and wife were devoted members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and close students of the Bible. Family prayer was never omitted in their home in the morning, no matter if farm work was pressing.

Francis Kling outlived all of his brothers and sisters. Died at Vintonton, June 22, 1898, in his 80th year.

Interment in Cobleskill Rural Cemetery by the side of his wife, who had preceded him ten years previously to the grave.

Three children: George H. Kling, Mrs. Harriet (Kling) Simmons, Margaret E. Kling and three grandchildren survived him.

George H. Kling, only son of Francis Kling, was born in the town of Richmondville. Married November 13, 1889, to Miss Harriet Severson of Guilderland Center, Albany County, N. Y. Stanley H. Kling, their son, was born March 10, 1891.

After a short residence on the home farm, George Kling removed to East Greenbush, Rensselaer County, N. Y. November 1889 he removed with his family to Troy, N. Y., where they have since resided.

June, 1918, Stanley H. Kling entered the United States military service, was ten months with the A. E. F. in France. (See Roll of Honor.) He became a member of the F. & A. M. fraternity in 1918. Now employed as Agency Cashier for the Troy office of John Hancock Mutual Life Ins. Co., Boston, Mass.

Harriet, daughter of Francis Kling, was married December 12, 1872, to Charles H. Simmons of the town of Summit, Schoharie County, N. Y. Before marriage both were engaged in teaching in the public schools of Schoharie County.

After marriage C. H. Simmons was interested in farming. They had two children: Mrs. Bertha S. Flint and Foster L. Simmons.

The former is the only surviving member of the family of Mrs. Harriet (Kling) Simmons. Mrs. Bertha (Simmons) Flint has been teaching a long time before and since her marriage. She is a graduate of Springfield Academy, Otsego County, N. Y. Graduate of Oneonta State Normal School for Teachers, also had two years in Columbia University for "Specialization Work." She has one son, Francis K. Flint.

Foster L. Simmons, second child of Mrs. Harriet (Kling) Simmons was born in the town of Seward, N. Y. He was a graduate of Albany Business College. Was manager for three years of the New York office for the Ostrander Fire Brick Co., Troy, N. Y. During this time he attended evening school at Cooper Institute. In 1913 he entered Louisville College of Dentistry where he died from blood poisoning April, 1916. He was to be graduated from the school June, 1916.

He was an expert golf player and was the professional instructor at both the Cherokee and Standard Golf Links of Louisville, Ky. He had his training when a small boy, acting as caddie for the Golf Links at Cooperstown, N. Y., where his parents resided. By not going home during the summer vacations, he earned enough to defray his school expenses. The faculty and members of the senior class of the College of Dentistry attended the funeral services at Louisville in a body. Many beautiful floral pieces expressed the high esteem in which he was held. The little caddies of the Standard Links sent huge bunches of violets which they gathered from the course.

Foster L. Simmons was ill but a few days, a carbuncle at the base of the brain caused blood poisoning. His sister reached his bedside but a few hours before his death. She brought the body to Troy, N. Y. Funeral services were held from the residence of his uncle, George H. Kling on April 20, 1916. Interment in Oakwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Harriet Kling Simmons survived her son five years, her husband, C. H. Simmons, passed away 1910. Her sudden death January 6, 1921, from angina pectoris was a shock to her relatives and friends for she was gone ere they knew of her illness. She was a quiet home loving woman, cheerfully performing every duty, winning the love and esteem of all with whom she came in contact. She whispered "Good Bye" to her daughter as her spirit took its flight to meet the dear ones gone before. Her body was brought to the home of her brother, George H. Kling, in Troy where funeral services were held. Interment in Oakwood Cemetery.

Margaret E. Kling, the first born of Francis Kling and wife, Mary Elizabeth Foland, and their daughter Harriet were both born in the town of Cobleskill, N. Y., but before either was old enough to attend school, Francis Kling, their father, removed to the town of Richmondville where Margaret E. entered school the next April.

The district school house was a mile from her home. It was a little, old, paintless building standing close to the highway, with scarcely room enough around it to accommodate a bantam mother hen and her chicks. The school-room was destitute of all furniture found in present day schools, but M. E. K. thought everything was beautiful because the teacher gave her permission to study her reading lesson and read ahead of her class. (Her mother had taught her to read.) She was so much pleased with the school that she resolved to teach school. A resolution she carried out, devoting 45 years of her life to that work.

When graduated from "The State Normal School," now "Teachers College," Albany, N. Y., she entered a more advanced grade of schools, as instructor and principal. September, 1883, she accepted the Principalship of Haskell School, Troy, N. Y., remaining 28 years in the same school, but not in the same building, as a new and modern equipped building was erected in 1895, a three-story building of twelve school-rooms each having a seating capacity of forty pupils. In this school the graduates finished the first year High School. The school is honored in having 53 of its graduates of 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909 serve in the "World War." Five of which did not return. M. E. Kling retired from school work June, 1911.

She entered the Temperance Work in 1869, thru the "Sons and Daughters of Temperance." March 23, 1880, she became a member of the I. O. G. T. Was one of the charter officers of "Rescue Lodge," No. 209, I. O. G. T., of Cobleskill, N. Y. Joined the Woman's Christian Temperance Union 1892. Joined the Woman's Suffrage Organization 1908. Remained actively at work in both organizations until both victories were gained. Since then she has worked for Enforcement of the "Eighteenth Amendment" thru the W. C. T. U.

While teaching in Cobleskill High School she was Secretary for three years of The Teachers' Association of Schoharie County. While teaching in Troy, N. Y., she was president two terms of Rensselaer County Teachers' Association, being the first woman to hold that position. She is a member of Philip Schuyler Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Is a life member of Rensselaer County W. C. T. U., also a member of the Half Century Graduate Club, Teachers' College, Albany, N. Y.

MARY (KLING) STOTT, seventh child and second daughter of John George and Laney (Dailey) Kling, was born at the old home in the town of Sharon, July 9, 1821. Was married to Rev. Robert Stotts, a retired Lutheran minister. They were residents of Sharon Springs for thirty-three years where they were well known to the city visitors of this famous health resort, for furnishing commodious quarters for their coachmen and horses during the boarding season.

Mr. and Mrs. Stotts passed away many years ago. Interment in Leesville Cemetery. They had no children.

LANEY ANN KLING, eighth and youngest child of John George Kling and wife, Laney Dailey, was born in Sharon, at the old home, August 12, 1824. She was married to Thomas Nipe of Carlisle, N. Y., in 1850, and they took up their residence at Sprakers, N. Y.

Thomas Nipe was not an old man, but a few years over fifty at his death and altho in his own estimation invulnerable to disease, he was not an over-strong man and at last succumbed to pneumonia. He was a well known nurse. Many a sick bed was kindly attended by his hand, and the dull room of the convalescent enlivened by his cheery words. Interment in the Kling Plot, Slate Hill. Laney (Kling) Nipe survived her husband several years. She died February 12, 1888, at Amsterdam, N. Y.

Laney Ann Kling and husband, Thomas Nipe, were the parents of three sons and two daughters. Charles W. Nipe of Frankfort, N. Y., is the only member of the this family living. He married Mary Kelley, who died in the fall of 1919 from an attack of influenza so prevalent at that time. She is survived by her husband and one son.

Lansing E. Nipe is survived by his widow, who was Miss Eva Abbot, niece of the late Asa Abbot of Cobleskill, N. Y.; a son, Leroy Nipe, and a grand son, a granddaughter and a brother.

C. W. Nipe and L. E. Nipe were for many years successful grocers in their home town of Frankfort, N. Y.

CHAPTER VII.

(5) Katy Kling Van Alstyne's Descendants.

KATY KLING, fifth child and third daughter of John Ludwig and Anna (France) Kling, was born at the old homestead, in the town of New Durlach, 1783, just at the close of the Revolutionary War. She was married to John Van Alstyne of the same town. They were the parents of eight children whose names were as follows:

- Nicholas Van Alstyne
- Daniel Van Alstyne
- John Van Alstyne
- Martin Van Alstyne
- Catherine Van Alstyne
- Elizabeth Van Alstyne
- Laney Ann Van Alstyne
- Nancy Van Alstyne

NICHOLAS VAN ALSTYNE was born in town of Sharon. Early in life he entered the Lutheran ministry and gave 60 years of his life in the service of that church. He died 1905, survived by one son and a number of grandchildren. (See Honor Roll of ministers.)

CATHERINE VAN ALSTYNE was the first wife of "Squire" Henry Loucks of the town of Seward, formerly part of the town of Sharon. She died survived by her husband; one son, John Martin Loucks, and one daughter, Mrs. Peter Strobeck.

ELIZABETH VAN ALSTYNE was married to John I. Ward. They resided during their entire wedded life about a quarter of a mile west of what is now Slate Hill Cemetery.

They were the parents of four daughters and one son. The names of their children are as follows: Louisa, Nancy, Maria, Mrs. D. Hains, and John E. Ward.

Louisa never married.

Nancy was married to a Mr. Rase, a farmer of Sharon.

Maria was married to Samuel Flansburg and they removed to Colorado. Mrs. D. Hains of Janesville, town of Seward, N. Y., died 1907 at her home in that place.

John E. Ward was born 1833 in town of Sharon, and died at Lawyersville, N. Y., April 18, 1909. He married a Miss Weber, now spelled "Weaver," of South Valley, N. Y. They had four sons and one daughter. Their names and place of residence are as follows:

Daniel Ward, Bridgeton, N. Y.

Herman Ward, Fort Plain, N. Y.

Jay Ward, Gloversville, N. Y.

Dorr Ward, Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Sherman MacNeil, only daughter, Seward, N. Y.

Mrs. John E. Ward passed away four years previous to the death of her husband. For a number of years they had resided in Cobleskill, where J. E.

Ward was in the employ of the Harder "Threshing Machine Co."

His children and a number of grandchildren survive him.

LANEY ANN VAN ALSTYNE was married to Martin Hoffman, a farmer of Sharon. They resided in the vicinity of the "Kling neighborhood." Not ascertained that they had any children.

In the early 60's the "Frankean Lutheran Synod" was held in Sharon, State of Wisconsin, and Rev. Marcus Kling, pastor of Argusville Lutheran Church, and Laney Ann Hoffman of Sharon Lutheran Church were appointed delegates to the Synod. It was a very enjoyable occasion, as Mrs. Hoffman met two of her brothers, Daniel and Martin Van Alstyne, who had removed to Wisconsin from Sharon. The brothers and Mrs. Hoffman were cousins of Rev. Marcus Kling, whose father, Henry Kling was a brother of Katy Kling Van Alstyne, her mother. The town of Sharon, Walworth County, Wis., was named for old Sharon of New York.

NANCY VAN ALSTYNE was married to Matthew Ottman, son of William Ottman, who was one of three brothers, sons of Christian Ottman, that were captured by the Indians in the fall of 1782 and taken to Niagara, thence to Canada, and held in captivity for more than a year before they were permitted to return home. Matthew was an own cousin to his wife's mother, Katy Kling Van Alstyne, as her mother was Anna (France) Kling, a sister of his mother, Catherine (France) Ottman. His mother-in-law, Katy Kling Van Alstyne, was also a niece of his mother. Regardless of mixed relationship Matthew Ottman and wife spent a long and happy married life together. They had two daughters. One was married and resided with her parents, the other daughter married and resided at Sharon Springs.

Matthew Ottman and wife were consistent and faithful attendants of the "Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Reformation" of Leesville, town of Sharon, where they resided.

DANIEL VAN ALSTYNE was born in the town of Sharon, N. Y., was a graduate of Whitesboro Academy. Married Elizabeth Joslyn of Utica, N. Y. After his ordination for the Lutheran ministry he received a call from a Lutheran church in Wisconsin; he accepted it and removed to that state, where he died, 1884.

MARTIN VAN ALSTYNE was born in town of Sharon. Married Rebecca Kling, the second daughter and ninth child of Nicholas Kling, his own cousin. Rebecca Kling's father and Martin Van Alstyne's mother were brother and sister. In the early 40's Martin Van Alstyne, with a number of other Sharon families, removed to Wisconsin. One daughter, Antoinette, of five children born to them, grew up and was married to William Catlin. They were living in 1909 at Glen Elyn, Ill. Her parents passed away many years ago.

Of JOHN VAN ALSTYNE very little reliable information has been obtained. It appears he was a farmer and lived for some time on a farm in the vicinity of Sharon Springs; disposing of that he located on another farm near Hyneys Mills. Of his family no information is available.

CHAPTER VIII.

(6) Jacob Kling's Descendants.

In the early 40's Jacob Kling and family with other Sharon families removed to the newly formed State of Wisconsin, however, several of his sons remained in the Mohawk Valley.

(8) Nancy Kling Lehman's Descendants.

NANCY, the eighth and youngest child of John Ludwig Kling and wife, Anna France, was born March 3, 1790, in the town of New Durlach, Montgomery County, formerly called Tryon County. Schoharie County was not formed until 1795.

Nancy Kling was married to Henry Lehman of the same town and county. He was a farmer and the owner of a farm near Sharon Springs where they resided. Here all of their children were born, and the wife and mother, Nancy (Kling) Lehman, died March 11, 1860.

Interment was in the family burial plot on the home farm.

This farm was purchased in 1876 by Alvin Dockstader of Carlisle, N. Y. Mrs. Dockstader is a granddaughter of the late Henry Kling of Breakabeen, N. Y., who was a brother of Nancy (Kling) Lehman. MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL

Descendants
John Ludwig Kling.

NICHOLAS VAN ALSTYNE was the first one of the grandsons of John Ludwig Kling to enter the ministry. He was ordained and entered the Lutheran ministry in early life, devoting sixty years of active service to the promotion of the Gospel in the Lutheran Churches of Rensselaer and Montgomery Counties. In 1871 he accepted a call to the Raymertown Lutheran Church, Rensselaer County, N. Y., where he remained until 1899, a period of 28 years. It is regretted that a history of his sixty years itineracy in church service could not be obtained.

REV. MARCUS KLING, grandson of John Ludwig Kling, entered Hartwick Seminary, Otsego County, in 1842. After his ordination to preach the Gospel in the Lutheran Church, he began his first pastorate at Argusville, N. Y., in 1848, where he continued uninterruptedly for nearly nineteen years, during this period also serving the Lutheran churches of "Center Valley" and of "Little York." The latter he organized in 1848, and in 1849 was instrumental in the erection and dedication of a Lutheran Church for the society. He also superintended the erection of a substantial Lutheran Church at Argusville in 1855.

Accepting a call from the Lutheran Church of Johnstown, N. Y., he served three years as its pastor, then came to Lawyersville where a vacancy had occurred thru the death of the pastor, Rev. Philip Weiting, who had requested Rev. M. Kling to take his place in case of his decease. Included in the pastorate at Lawyersville was a portion of his early field of labor, that of "Little York."

At the expiration of eleven years' service in these churches he retired from active church work, having served faithfully and successfully thirty-three years in the ministry of the Lutheran Church.

REV. DANIEL VAN ALSTYNE, D. D., grandson of John Ludwig Kling, was a graduate of Whitesboro Academy, N. Y. After his ordination as a Lutheran minister, he accepted a call to take charge of a Lutheran church in Wisconsin and removed to that state with his family. In 1880, he visited Europe. Spent considerable time in the old City of Wittenburg, Germany. Upon his return in 1881 he delivered a number of interesting lectures on the "Relics of the Reformation in Wittenburg" from his personal observation. He came east in 1881 to visit relatives in Schoharie and Montgomery Counties. Soon after his return to Wisconsin he retired from the ministry.

REV. JOHN KLING, great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, received his theological education at Selin's Grove, Pa., and Hartwick Seminary, N. Y.

He entered the ministry of the English Lutheran Church, November, 1866. During his labor of over fifty years in the ministry he filled the pulpits of the following congregations:

Maryland, Otsego County, N. Y.—1866 to 1867.

Poestenkill, Rensselaer County, N. Y.—1867 to 1873.

East Schodack, Rensselaer County, N. Y.—1873 to 1877.

Ancram, Columbia County, N. Y.—1877 to 1880.

Wurtemburg Church, Rhinebeck, Dutchess County, N. Y.—1880 to 1886.

Valatie, Columbia County, N. Y.—1866 to 1890.

Phoenixville, Chester County, Pa.—1890 to 1893.

Berne, Albany County, N. Y.—1893 to 1902.

Guilderland Center, Albany County, N. Y.—1902 to 1907.

Wurtemburg Church, Rhinebeck, Dutchess County, N. Y.—1907 to 1913.

East Schodack, Rensselaer County, N. Y.—1915 to 1918.

In December of 1913 Rev. Kling retired from active work in the ministry. He re-entered the ministry as pastor of the East Schodack Lutheran Church, August 1, 1915. He retired for the second time July 1, 1918, at which time he delivered his last sermon on his 80th birthday.

REV. ARTHUR M. KLING, great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, was a member of the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was the Conference Secretary and Treasurer for several years. He served some of the largest congregations in that Conference. Years of arduous work compelled him to retire April, 1918, from active service for a much needed rest. He took up his residence in Cobleskill, to give his son, Arthur, Jr., the advantage of the High School.

His health did not improve and the announcement of his sudden death on August 7, 1918, was a shock to his ministerial brethren and former parishioners.

REV. C. V. KLING, great-great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, was born August 10, 1873. Graduate Hartwick (Classical) 1896, (Theological) 1899. Lutheran pastorate Breakabeen, 1899; Argusville, 1900-1905.

Ordained deacon (Episcopal Church) 1906; Priest, 1907.

Rector St. Paul's Church, Waddington, N. Y., 1907-08. Rector Grace Church, Waterford, N. Y., 1909-1913; Rector Trinity Church, Tulsa, Okla., 1914-1920; Rector St. James' Church, Fort Edward, N. Y., 1921; Rector Trinity Church, Troy, N. Y. 1922.

REV. CHARLES G. EMPIE, D. D., is a great-great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, and of the fifth generation on the maternal side. He was graduated from Hamilton College in '98, and studied theology at Hartwick Seminary. He was ordained in June, 1900, and served the following congregations: Raymertown, N. Y., following Rev. Nicholas Van Alstyne; St. Johnsville, N. Y.; Oldwick, N. J., and is now pastor of the English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer of Troy, N. Y. Rev. Empie served as President of the Frankean Synod, and also was a member for 18 years of the Board of Trustees of the Hartwick Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church. From this institution he received in 1923 the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity.

REV. GEORGE H. KLING, son of Martin Kling and great-great-great grandson of John Ludwig Kling, began his pastoral work in the Second Lutheran Church of West Sand Lake, N. Y., July, 1913, where he is yet in service.

He is a graduate of Hartwick Theological Seminary where the degree of Bachelor of Divinity was conferred upon him. Had two years in Union College, Schenectady. Has been associated with Rensselaer County Sunday School for a number of years. He is also a worker in the field of temperance.

REV. EVA KLING GEORGE, daughter of the late Ira C. Kling of Chicago, was born 1882. She is a graduate of Drake University of Des Moines, Iowa, a Christian (Disciple) School. She is an ordained minister of the Disciple Church, 1620 Beaver avenue, Des Moines, Iowa. Rev. Eva Kling George is a granddaughter of William Kling, great granddaughter of Jacob Kling and great great granddaughter of John Ludwig Kling.

MRS. LOTTIE WOODFORD'S name is included with the ministers of the Gospel, descendants of John Ludwig Kling, for the fact she is an indefatigable worker in a Christian organization that includes a million members in the United States.

Lottie Abbott Woodford, daughter of Frank and Mary Kling Abbott and great great granddaughter of John Ludwig Kling, is a graduate of Milwaukee State Normal School, Milwaukee, Wis., and of the University of Wisconsin.

She taught school for seven years, first in the public schools and later as supervising teacher in the Normal School.

After her marriage and the subsequent death of her husband, Mrs. Woodford became actively engaged in Women's Christian Temperance work. She was president of the local Union in Westfield, Wis., for fifteen years, during which time she held several county offices.

In 1910 she was made State Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, which office she still holds.

Her successful work for the state in that field led to her appointment as National Lecturer, Department Scientific Temperance Instruction.

In the summer of 1923, during the illness of the National Director of that department, Mrs. Woodford was appointed to discharge those duties. For three months she lectured before large bodies of students, beginning in the High Schools of Washington and the District of Columbia, and continuing the work in high schools, summer schools and colleges throughout Pennsylvania, New Jersey and West Virginia.

Mrs. Woodford's work in the W. C. T. U. has brought her naturally into the political field. She is a member of the Republican County Committee and in 1922, during the Wisconsin primary election, she was State Campaign Manager for the W. C. T. U., working with the Republican State Committee in Milwaukee where the fight to nominate dry candidates was made.

REV. MARCUS W. EMPIE and REV. DAVID OTTMAN were not descendants of John Ludwig Kling, yet so closely were they related to the Klings by marriage it is not out of order for their names to appear in this history.

Rev. M. W. Empie, born 1824, in town of Sharon, N. Y., baptized by Rev. A. Crownse, received the hand of welcome and fellowship into the church from Rev. P. Wieting. In 1848, he became pastor of the "Sharon Lutheran Church," Walworth County, Wis.

He married Sally (Sarah), daughter of Abram Kling, granddaughter of Nicholas Kling, and great granddaughter of John Ludwig Kling. His sister, Sophia Empie, was the wife of Peter A. Kling, son of Jacob Kling. Abram Kling and Peter A. Kling were own cousins. The children of Peter A. Kling and wife, Sophie Empie, were nephews and nieces of M. W. Empie. Peter A. Kling, husband of Sophie Empie, was a grandson of John Ludwig Kling. M. W. Empie's church congregation was largely made up of families from "Old Sharon," N. Y.

Rev. David Ottman, son of William Ottman and wife, Catherine France, was a nephew of John Ludwig Kling and Anna (France) Kling, as his mother was sister of Anna (France) Kling. David Ottman was a brother of Peter W. Ottman, who married Hannah, a daughter of Mary Kling Bellinger, who was daughter of John Ludwig Kling. The said Mary Kling Bellinger was an own cousin of her son-in-law, Peter W. Ottman, and also own cousin of David Ottman, brother of Peter W. Ottman.

Rev. David Ottman was born between 1796 and 1800. He was a farmer and lived on a farm about a mile west of Sharon Hill. He was a man of more than ordinary ability. Tho he followed thru life his early occupation of farming, yet having been licensed to preach he began his church work at Freysbush. In 1841 he organized the church at Center Valley, N. Y. He finally went to Wisconsin and settled in Walworth County, where he organized, in September, 1845, the Lutheran Church of Sharon. He married Miss Polly Moak and had a large family.
